Dear Mr. Jeff Younce,

I am writing to recommend Brian Lorick for a position with General Dynamics Information Technology. Brian has been involved in The National Society of Leadership and Success (NSLS) at Online Chapter and has completed the Foundations of Leadership certification, a rigorous leadership training program facilitated through our organization.

As leadership skills are important in any successful business, I am confident Brian would be an excellent candidate for your organization. Through NSLS, Brian committed to leadership training focused on collaboration, goal setting, high achievement, honing leadership skills and styles, self motivation, and accountability. These exemplary qualities are aligned with employees who are poised for success. Instead of needing to acquire these skills on the job, Brian will come to your organization with them already developed.

The NSLS is the nation's largest leadership honor society, providing over 1 million members with life-changing certification programs, personal growth, and professional development resources. Since joining, Brian has attended training broadcasts with leaders such as former Presidents Barack Obama and George W. Bush, Mark Cuban, Barbara Corcoran, Trevor Noah, Deepak Chopra, Sir Richard Branson, and Arianna Huffington.

Additionally, through bi-weekly networking team meetings, Brian has learned how to use a peer group to increase performance while completing a journal to document progress and goals. Finally, Brian attended a comprehensive Leadership Training Day to connect all new learnings. The certification process is completed by an average of 1% of the students on college campuses running the NSLS program.

I hope you will consider Brian for a position within your company. The leadership certification Brian has completed will directly contribute to increased performance at General Dynamics Information Technology.

Very truly yours,
